One of the Wettest Seasons on Recor This Decade.

In the table following the rainfall and mean temperature for the months of March, April, May, and June, for ten years, are given. The figures seem to confirm the expressions constantly heard that this is "one of the wettest seasons ever known." In May last 8.67 inches of rain fell, in June 6.32 about 15 inches for the two monthsmore than we usually have for March, April, May, and June altogether. This count makes a tie between the opposing parties, but the Democratic have good hope that other Democratic Reformers will repudiate the nominations made, leave the caucusmen, and join them. The Democratic members in the Board of Aldermen number eleven of the total membership of eighteen and the eleven can, therefore, use teen, and the eleven can, therefore, use their own pleasure as to fixing upon a time when the Board and the Common Council shall meet in joint session for the election of city officials.

The Common Council will meet this evening at 5 o'clock. The only posi-tion they have to fill is president. The Board of Aldermen will meet at 7 P. M. to-day. They have to elect a pre-sident and a clerk. All other officers will be elected in joint session of the

The interviews following set forth in members' own language the reasons that determined them in bidding farewell to the caucus, and make a valuable addition to the history of this cam-Reasons for Abandoning the Caucus

Mr. George E. Bowden, being asked why, he left the caucus night before last, said: Well, I'll begin at the be-ginning and tell you about the whole thing. At the earnest solicitation of the committee from my ward I con-sented to let them use my name under certain contingencies on the labor question as a working-man, without any pledges, and had avoided making any pledges to any one, taking the ground that the city would need all the conservative element in the next Council that was available. I entered the canvass as a Conservative man, and consider that my election was secured on that issue. I have tried to carry that idea out. After the election, in the conferences that were held I have invariably expressed myself against "clean sweeps," and believing that it was necessary to go into caucus, consented to do so under the two-thirds rule. After the meeting of last Thursday night my attention was called to what proved to be a fact-that we had the two old members of the Board of Aldermen that were elected on the Republican ticket in caucus with us-which somewhat surprised me, believing it was composed entirely of those elected on the 27th. Being informed also on my way to the caucus last night that certain men prominent for office at our hands were seen going in and coming out of the residence of Mr. J. S. Wise, I inquired into it, and found it was true beyond a doubt. This action proved to my mind that there must have been either a swap or a combination. Believing I was elected to do all the good I could for my ward, regardless of office-seekers, I thought I could serve those that elected me by being free to act as occasion required, and so withdrew. We had no previous policy laid out, but met the

Do you think your action will be endorsed by your constituents?
Undoubtedly I do. Some few per sons may say we should have stayed and seen the thing out. Nearly every-body I have met to-day has endorsed the action of Mr. Hughes and myself. Do you believe that you are bound by the previous caucus? No, sir, emphatically, so tar as the joint caucus is concerned; believing what was accomplished was by decep-tion, I think I am honorably discharged from all obligations as to the previous joint caucuses. HIDDEN INFLUENCES AT WORK. Mr. Evan Snead, of Clay Ward : The reason of my withdrawing from the caucus was, first, on account of two members from Jackson Ward being there. I maintain that they had no right to be present. Members who were elected en the Reform ticket and those endorsed by them were the only ones invited, as I understood it. These two were neither elected nor endorsed by the Reform party. I did not approve of the action of the caucus at meetings held before. I had reasons for believing that there were certain influences at work which did not meet my approval. Candidates were sprung upon the cau-cus of whom I had never heard before, and were nominated for responsible po-sitions that are now filled by worthy and efficient officials. All this was done in a manner that proved to me that there was preconcerted action on the part of certain parties. My suspicion was aroused at this. The result of Tuesday night's caucus, together with the caucuses held before, convince me that combinations through outside influences had been perfected, and, not being willing to be a party to them, I withdrew. Do you consider yourself bound by former caucuses? I do not consider myself bound to vote for any of the caucus nominees. My hands are free, and I shall vote for any person I choose. THE TWO JACKSON-WARD REPUBLI-Mr. M. F. Hudnall, of Monroe Ward:

I fully concur in what Mr. Snead has said. I raised the point last night in caucus in reference to the two members from Jackson Ward. One of the main causes of my leaving the caucus was that I was satisfied a number of its members were under the influence of Hon. John S. Wise. MR. OTLEY'S VIEWS.

Mr. John W. Otley, of Monroe Ward, being asked his views : The caucus was being asked his views: The caucus was supposed to be organized by parties who were elected on the Reform ticket or endorsed by them in the last municipal election. The agreement signed by myself and by many others contemplated a caucus of only such persons. By some means others were admitted the way were alected. I only know ing on any one. Of course when you change the conditions of an agreement you change its obligations. It is useless to tell you that I am a Democrat of the strictest sect.

Mr. R. A. Hughes, of Jefferson Ward: I left the caucus because I had every reason to believe that a political ring had been formed to carry their points against the Reform Council. Besides, there were two representatives who were packed in the caucus who had no right there, and who were using their judy once as just what I would had no right there, and who were using their influence against what I would call the interest of true reform, and ag soon as I became a rare of the fact I made up my mind not to participate or abide the result, even if I were the only one to take such action. I am thoroughly satisfied, from what I could learn at the different conferences, that outside pressure was brought to bear from prominent Republicans. MR. DAVIS WITHDREW THURSDAY

Mr. R. T. Davis, of Clay Ward: I was not at the caucus Tuesday night; nor was it my intention to attend. I withdrew from the caucus last Thursday night. The cause of my doing so on that occasion was that I was satisfied from what was going on that night that a combination had been formed with some parties, through the influwith some parties, through the influence of Hon. John S. Wise, which meant no good to the Reform party or to the Democracy. I am a Knight of Labor; and I am for the best interest of the workingmen.

IN SELF-DEFENCE HE SIGNED. Mr. John T. Montgomery, of Marshall Ward: I was opposed to the caucus from the first, because I never knew any good to result from the action of one, and I did not see the occasion of holding one to nominate city officers.

I was the twenty-seventh man that signed the paper to hold it. I did it in self-defence, hoping to be able to retain some of the good and efficient officials of the city. I was opposed to a clean sweep, as I stated before in an interview published in the Dispatch. When I went into the caucus I was told that there would be no persons admitted except those who were elected by the Reform party or endorsed by it, and, this understanding being violated, I withdrew, and I do not feel myself obligated by the caucus proceedings, and I shall vote for any one that I choose. I wish you would add that I have never voted for a Republican President, and that in State and municipal elections I have voted for men that I thought best fitted to fill office.

"A KIND OF REPUBLICAN MOVE." Mr. F. J. Parater: I thought that as I was going out of the old Council with clean hands that it would be betwork for the accomplishment of a day's work of the accomplishment of a day's work and I was convinced from that occurred at the last meeting that there was a ring within a ring in the caucus. As the two colored Republican members (Robinson and Adams) had been invited to take part in the caucus and none of the old Democrats had been invited, I thought I was in a kind of Republican move, and so I got up and left. I in no way hold myself responsible for what was done in joint caucus, but I do feel honor bound to support the president of the Commen Council who was nominated in Council caucus.

They have to set 16,500 bricks every day for their task. Of course, this estimate is not computed as true, because it is a fraction over the sum supposed in Council caucus, but I do feel honor bound to support the president of the Commen Council who was nominated in Council caucus.

They have to set 16,500 bricks every day for their task. Of course, this estimate is not computed as true, because it is a fraction over the sum supposed it is a fraction over the sum supposed it is a fraction over the sum supposed which we are engaged—the cause of frust which we are engaged—the cause of frust task of the year day and the same who sift, and each man a thousand bricks to take up in the afternoon of every day, but the $2.50 to see not demand $0.50 a day for himself, as here-tofore supposed, but the $6.50 is dissinguistic in four parts—$2.2 to the setter and $1.50 to each one of the whoelers. They have to set 16,500 bricks every do the two Branches of the two Branches of the two Branches of the caucus, but I do feel honor the outer task. Of course, this estimate it is a fraction over the sum supposed it is a fraction over the sum supposed it is a fraction over the sum supposed it is a fraction over the s

HE DESERVES IT ALL. Mr. Allan Pays a Tribute to Police-

Justice Richardson In the Police Court yesterday morning, after Justice D. C. Richardson had discharged S. Sidenberg and his brother Abram, who had been examined on a charge of perjury, Mr. Edgar Allan, who had represented the accused, asked leave to address a few remarks to the Court, not pertaining to the case just disposed of. Mr. Allan spoke substantially as follows:

"If your Honor please, this is in all probability the last time I shall have to appear before this court during the period in which your Honor will preside, and I desire to take the opportunity of saying a few words which could not properly be uttered were it likely our official relationship to each other would remain as heretofore. I know, sir, the almost universal tendency of mankind is to worship the rising rather than the setting sun, and that perhaps what I am about to say may be misconstrued to my detriment by those who will shortly fill the positions of the present officers of this court. But now that the closing hours of your Honor's official course have come, I should be untrue to the promptings of my heart did I not, in this public manner, not only return my personal thanks for the uniform kindness with which I have always been treated by the Court and its officers, but also express the sense I feel of the great loss the city of Richmond is about to sustain. I do not exaggerate when I say that there is no court in this Commonwealth where as many elements combined are requisite to a proper discharge of the duties of judge as in the Police Court of this city. It requires a full and thorough knowledge in regard to the criminal classes of the city; it requires one who understands the city's needs in the matter of providing for the reformstion of juvenile offenders by places of confinement where they will avoid contact with those hardened in crime; it requires one possessing no small know-ledge of the law in all its branches, for with its wide civil and criminal jurisdiction it combines in no small degree the practice, if not the pleadings, of every other court in the State, and it requires perhaps above everything else the unflinching courage to mete out the just punishment to all wrong-doers, combined with that element of mercy which, by straining justice and becom-ing 'a law unto itself,' may often check the downward course of the young at the first wrong step and lead them back to the paths of virtue untainted by the edicts of the law.
"It is no fulsome flattery when I say that Richmond does not contain a citizen who combines as many of these essentials as does the present occupan of the bench I am now addressing, and I am sure I might point by the score to parents who will forever bless the were elected on the Reform ticket or endorsed by them in the last municipal election. The agreement signed by myself and by many others contemplated a caucus of only such persons.

By some means others were admitted who were not so elected. I only knew a few days ago that such was the case, and, since the conditions were not complied with, the acts could not be binding, and I did not care to be a party to a thing of no binding force. I do not regard any act, so far, as morally bind-

The Brick-Montders.
To the Editor of the Dispatch:
We said in your issue of the 23d instant that we would not trespass again on your valuable columns, but as we are accested on all occasions for some intelligence as to what we do so much on these yards as our pay demands $5 a day to the moulder and $6.50 to the setter and his help. The idea in the above clause seems to have been misconstrued in public opinion.
So we think, sir, what we now communicate for the edification of the public they will not again be overbearing with us as to request our statement again on the brick subject, although we are willing at all times to inform to the best of our ability what is necessary.
We will say, in the first place, a moulder does not demand $5 a day for the making of 3,000 bricks, but this $5 will have to be distributed in four parts—namely, the moulder $2, wheeler $5 will have to be distributed in four parts-namely, the moulder $2, wheeler $1.50, bearer $1.25, and the little boy who paddles in water 25 cents—for the making of 3,000 bricks. In doing this work for the accomplishment of a day's work we have the yards to put in order time viewing our almost poor-house homes, with this understanding-that you all are fully able to do what is right and should unfesitatingly grant to us our just demands.

With these remarks we submit the day move from their present place of business, No. 1202 Cary street, to the spacious and convenient warehouse at the southeast corner of Cary and Twelfth streets, No. 1201 Cary street and 101 and 103 south Twelfth street. These gentlemen have only been in business here for a few years, but during that time their business has assumed such enormous proportions that their present stand is utterly inadequate to transact it in; hence the removal. This large increase of trade to this one firm exhibits its energy and commercial push, which is highly commendable, and it is to be congratulated.

Merchants coming to this city from the country will do well to stop at

We desire to call the attention of chewers to our Capstone, manufactured from the highest grade of Fluvanna Suncured Little Orinoco Tobacco, which is the queen of all tobaccos. It has sufficient age to make it a charming chew (crop of 1884). We ask those who like something good to give it a trial.

We bespeak for the Capstone universal satisfaction. We will give a sample to any one making application either by letter or in person.

Respectfully, NORVELL, GATES & SNEAD,

Visitors at the Buffalo Lithia Springs this year report a marked improvement in the hotel. It has been largely refurnished and painted, and under the management of the genial host, Mr. B. K. Tice, bids fair to excel all southern resorts in the cuisine and general attractions. It is a good place to spend the Fourth, and get the benefit of the wonderful waters. Excusion tickets for round trip are on sale at Richmond and Danville depot.

Every Branch of the League should set to work promptly to prepare for the coming crists, and should remit all funds on hand immediately to the national treasurer, at the troit, so that the money may be forwarded by him to Ireland, and be made available, if necessary, for the approaching campaign. All true friends of Ireland should, by active and earnest organization, endeavor to make our approaching Convention worthy of the sacred cause in which we are engaged—the cause of Irish liberty.
